Tru-Medical Protection for America

Executive Summary

Tru-Medical Protection for America is a structural policy framework designed to simplify healthcare coverage mechanisms using systems already familiar to federal agencies, private carriers, employers, and consumers.

Core Insight

Medical care delivery and financial protection structures serve different roles. Separating these functions allows policy improvements without restructuring medical delivery systems.

Framework Components

- Unified Medicare identification structure
- Income-based premium contributions
- Private carrier plan delivery
- Continuous individual coverage
- Simplified assistance structure

Implementation Snapshot

- Phase 1 – ACA population transition
- Phase 2 – Self-employed transition
- Phase 3 – Low income transition
- Phase 4 – Employer coverage transition
